Information about the Maths Faculty

At Risedale, we believe all pupils are mathematicians and we strive to bring the joy of maths to everyone. Key Stage 3 Mathematics is studied over three years. In Years 7, 8 and 9, pupils study a spiral curriculum. We recognise that this structure is important for the retention of key mathematical concepts and mastery (and our faculty's recent work with the regional Maths Hub has supported our curriculum design and delivery). A similar structure remains at KS4, where pupils study for their GCSE in Mathematics through the Pearson Edexcel examination board.

Every pupil at Risedale will appreciate that mathematics is the key that unlocks a variety of problems that we all face in our lives. A fluency in the key skills of mathematics is one component of a bigger picture. The application of this knowledge to solving increasingly complex problems allows pupils to appreciate the relevance and necessity of all aspects of mathematics to real life. While teaching a pupil how to solve an equation has value in itself, teaching a pupil how to use this knowledge to solve a problem is the equivalent of shining a light on a hidden world. Through the appreciation of how mathematics allows you to solve problems, pupils will begin to see the intrinsic beauty and elegance of the subject in its purest form.

"People have described me as 'Risedale through and through'. I went to school at Risedale, my father was the Head of Science (when I joined), and my mother has worked here on supply. I've never worked in another school and will be happy to remain at Risedale for the rest of my career. Why? You will never find a more supportive, caring and dedicated group of people in any other school or walk of life. Teachers at Risedale bend over backwards (or any other direction) for the pupils they teach."
